

2012 - IN PICTURES

MSc completed, I graduated this month 27 years after the first time!

The course, (MSc in Biological Photography and Imaging at the University of Nottingham) involved photographing and filming wildlife such as this magnificent eagle. Also microscopy, time lapse movies, underwater photography, video and movie editing and layout and design of magazines, books, ebooks and websites. Great fun! Now I've just got to get a job ...

The Titanic experience on a trip to Belfast.

A wonderful couple of days at the Olympics.

Celebrating completing the second term's assignments with fellow students.

Plenty of hiking: frost in the Peak District, Linda at the top of Helvellyn and below a mountain top in Bavaria. Left: new addition to the family - Tilly

Skiing in France in January got the year off to a great start.

I spent the summer researching my dissertation on the River Severn estuary, here looking across to the island of Steep Holm.

MERRY CHRISTMAS ONE AND ALL!
